Introduction:

The world seems to have come to a standstill due to a virus named Covid-19. The countries across the world are fighting the pandemic but there is hope that we all shall overcome. Amidst this global crisis, each person on earth is trying to go ahead with her his duty, even if this means 'work from home' for many. The educational institutions across the world, where tomorrow is carved, are also under the impact of the 'lockdown'. As per the estimation of the UNESCO, presently 1.5 billion students are at home.

The world has never anticipated such a situation in the 21st century, no country is spared, the present situation is an experience for many and it will leave behind lasting impressions on everyone. This pandemic is sure to leave behind a strong economical and social impact. As per IMF's Gita Gopinath the world economy will lose $9 trillion due to Covid-19. But this pandemic will also etch a very deep psychological impact on the minds of the people of all ages. Amidst all this, there is hope for tomorrow to be better than yesterday. This hope is seen in the eyes of the youth around. The youth of today with the world in their palm have already planned a world they expect 'Post Covid -19'. Most of the students today are studying online for the education should never stop, for there is a tomorrow waiting.

Lloyd Law College takes the initiative to capture the dreams and aspirations, the fears and the anticipations around Covid -19. Lloyd Law College with a belief that the power of pen will help overcome isolation and help expand horizons through creativity invites the youth of India to participate in the National Level Essay Writing Competition, 'Quarantine Diaries: Pen-down in Lockdown' National Essay Writing Competition, 2020.

Youth is the hope and the time of life filled with opportunities, amidst this crisis when the whole world with its experts have created opinions on the changes in the socio-economic sphere, Lloyd invites the youth to explore their heart and mind and share their thoughts and feelings.
